THE SILENT REAPER.

ELEANOR RUSSEL.

Friday, February 22d, 1907, at 2 o'clock p. m., Mrs. Eleanor Vandever Russel lay asleep in Jesus. She was born in Wayne county, Ohio, May 2nd, 1829, and had reached the great age of 77 years, 9 months and 20 days.

August 2nd, 1851, she was united in marriage to Harrison Russel in Wayne county, Ohio, and as a bride came with her husband to Holt county, Missouri, and settled near Curzon. Here they established a Christian home. Their union was blessed with three children, all of whom survive the deceased: Arthur, now living in New Mexico; Alice J. and Sidney M., both of whom live in Oregon, and gave their mother the tenderest care during the long period of her suffering. For nine years she had been afflicted, but bore her sufferings with Christian fortitude and resignation, ministered to by loving hands.

Besides the above mentioned children, she is survived by three brothers and two sisters, six grand children and two great grand children. One of the brothers is Bent Vandever, of Oregon.

A host of friends, in addition to those united to her by the ties of kinship, mourn her loss. The large concourse gathered at the Oregon Presbyterian church at the funeral testifies the esteem in which she was held by the community. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. James M. Walton, her pastor, assisted by Rev. H. A. Sawyers, D. D., of St. Joseph, her former pastor. Her remains were laid away in Maple Grove cemetery Sunday 24th, to await the resurrection of the righteous.

"To depart and be with the Lord" was for her "far better." We sorrow, but our sorrow is mellowed by the hope in mortal. She was a true and loving wife and a tender faithful mother. She was a mother in the noblest sense of the word—Gentle and loving, winning all who knew her. She united with the Highland Presbyterian church early in her married life, and when that organization was dissolved transferred her membership to Oregon. She lived a consistent Christian life and died trusting in her Saviour.

"So teach us to number our days that we may apply our hearts to wisdom" as did this mother in Israel!

DOBYNS.

The newspaper fraternity sympathize keenly with their brother editor, Charles N. Dobyns, of the Corning Mirror, occasioned by the death of his dear wife, which occurred at her home in Corning, Mo., on Wednesday last, February 20, 1907, after a brief illness from pneumonia. When a child she had a happy disposition, which manifested the spirit of helpfulness to all around her. It was with this marked characteristic she developed from girlhood to womanhood, and had one desire above all others—to be a true helpmeet. Underlying this was the deeper ambition of her soul, to make her life useful to others, to be helpful and lift up to higher ideals of life. For years she had been a stay and help to her unfortunate husband, who had depended on her by reason of being deprived of his hearing, in gathering news items for his publication, and learned to put these in type, and materially assist him in the publication of his paper. Ambitious to the highest degree, she began the publication of the Craig Mirror in September, 1905, and controlled and managed its publication up to the time of her death. She was also publisher of a Forest City paper for some time, and for 17 years she was actively engaged in the newspaper work in this county, and became practical, both in the editorial, reportorial and mechanical departments, and was devoted to her calling.

She was a true helpmeet in all that that word implies, and her death has cast a gloom over the entire community of both Craig and Corning, for she was greatly beloved by all. While the loss is great to her husband, the two little daughters and four sons are deprived of a loving, self-sacrificing mother—and when mother is gone, there is a place made vacant no one can fill.

Clara B. McNabb was born at Ewing, O., September 15, 1870, and died February 20, 1907, in the 37th year of her age. April 1, 1890, she was married to Charles N. Dobyns, and by this union seven children were born to them, two daughters and four sons, whom together with the father survive; she also leaves a widowed mother, three brothers and three sisters to mourn her death. The husband will miss the loving, self-sacrificing companion. "Just be true." The boys will yearn for mother's face when they come from school. Boys, just be "true." And those dear little girls—God bless all mothers' girls. "Just be true."

Funeral services were conducted from the Corning Christian church, to which organization she had been identified from early girlhood, by Rev. R. Bruce West, of the Craig Presbyterian church. The Corning choir furnished the music and Rev. West sang the beautiful solo "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere." The floral tokens were many and came from sympathizing friends of both Corning and Craig. Interment was in the family lot in the New Liberty cemetery.

There can be neither defense nor excuse for such a record of homicidal negligence and incompetency, yet the list of killed and wounded is certain to grow by leaps and bounds as long as the American "captain of industry" is allowed to regard the American railroad as merely a pawn in the game of high finance. No other comment on the Wall Street conception of railroad's functions is so damning as this bloodstained record of the dead and injured.

May Close All Saloons.

If the decision handed down last week by Circuit Court Judge S. R. Artman, of Lebanon, Indiana, holding that the legislature has no more legal right to license the sale of intoxicating liquors than it has to license gambling, is upheld by the higher courts, it will close every saloon in the state.

Judge Artman held that the retail liquor business has no legal standing on the ground that it is not one of the inherent common law rights of citizenship, since the business is dangerous to public health, public morals and public safety. The legislature, Judge Artman declared, cannot make lawful for a price that which is unlawful, because that contravenes the fundamental principle of government. In other words, the legislature cannot legalize a menace to public health, nor can the state, under the guise of a police regulation, looking to the public morals, license the saloon business.

A wealth of opinions from the higher courts of many states and of the United States supreme court bearing on these contentions were quoted in the decision. Some of the decisions quoted showed that both federal and state courts had ruled that no form of gambling, such as lotteries, etc., could be legalized, since they are a peril to the welfare of society. In this connection Judge Artman pointed out many of the same courts had held that the sale of intoxicants was a menace to the welfare of the community and held therefore that if it was right to declare gambling unlawful, it also was right to declare liquor selling unlawful.

The Free Seed Question.

Several members of congress were discussing the restoration of the free seed appropriation in the agricultural appropriation bill in the lobby of the New Willard at Washington, last week. The men who represented rural districts were particularly pronounced in their advocacy of the free seed distribution, while the city members were either opposed to it or indifferent.

"As a member of congress, representing a city district, I think I can present an argument in favor of the free seed distribution that is unanswerable," said Representative E. A. Taylor, Jr., "and that does not necessarily mean that I am in favor of it. The district I represent is very largely a city district. I have comparatively very few constituents who are farmers. But strange as it may seem, I have more requests for vegetable seeds from the city people than I have from the farmers and gardeners of the country. What do they do with them in the city? They raise small gardens of vegetables in their back yards, their side yards, or wherever they can find room for them. And in doing this they find it necessary to clean up those yards, so that far from being dirty and unsanitary, the yards are clean and sweet and wholesome. I know of men to whom I have sent vegetable seeds who have transformed their yards from dirty places into beautiful gardens, and the effect from a sanitary standpoint, needs no advertising. I have no doubt that other members have had the same experience, and I believe that the free distribution of seeds has done more to bring about, decent and respectable back yards in the city than any other agency of the government. This is one defense of the seed distribution that I have never heard made, and it appears to me to be unanswerable."

—A young woman of Mexico, in this state who is suing for breach of promise, is quoted as telling a newspaper reporter "He told me that his parents objected to his marrying me and that if he did, it would kill them. I told him that it might as well kill them as kill me, for I would never get over it. It has almost killed me, for every time I see him it hurts me, and I love him and always will as long as there is any of him left." No funeral arrangements have been made.

—One of our exchanges in telling of a man who chopped his foot while splitting wood, broke a record by failing to add that "that was what he got for doing a woman's work."

—There are 235 convicts now in the Missouri penitentiary serving a second term; 76 their third term; 25 serving their fourth term; two serving their sixth term. One man serving his 12th term in a penal institution is 90 years old. The youngest convict is 17 years of age. Sixty-one of the inmates of the penitentiary at present were sentenced for 10 years and over. Four are in for life sentences and three for 99 years each. During the year ending November 30, 1906, 24 convicts died, nearly all being buried in the prison cemetery. An average of 1,500 convicts has been employed on contract labor during the past year, in the various factories inside the prison, the state receiving 60 cents per day per man for their labor.
